

PhD in Lifelong Learning

A lifelong learning approach to applied advance research that is typically interdisciplinary in nature.

SPECIALIZATIONS

- Lifelong learning & innovation
- Islam and learning
- Inclusive learning policy & practice
- Transitions from learning to working
- The academic workplace
- Adult education

FLEXIBLE PHD STUDY

There are two alternative routes to the PhD in Lifelong Learning Programme - The “PhD with Publications” or traditional “PhD by Monograph” approach.

Both offer opportunities to conduct customised research that integrates with the workplace.

START DATE

The programme is offered from August 2019. There will be two intakes per year.

The programme enables students to gain applied specialist knowledge and research skills through original research at a doctoral level worthy of publication, and to foster a lifelong learning research culture and contribution to new applied interdisciplinary knowledge.

Lifelong learning research will support UBD in developing a community of researchers to expand a deeper understanding of lifelong learning specific to the religious and cultural context of Brunei Darussalam.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

The PhD in Lifelong Learning is especially catered for those who wish to undertake a research degree in applied interdisciplinary research relevant to the workplace and the development of Brunei Darussalam.

This degree meets a growing global shift towards a knowledge based economy, where there is a transformative demand in the labour market for employees to continuously acquire new skills and applied knowledge through lifelong learning. In addition, this degree is closely aligned with a growing demand for Islamic approaches to applied research.
